The only Aussie flag NGT could find in Nimbin on Monday was this one, on a Queensland vehicle.

Has Oz Day lost its relevance?

by Bob Dooley

There were no flags along the street, no themed entertainments, not even much of an Aussie BBQ to be had throughout the whole long weekend in Nimbin, despite a well-attended Smoking Ceremony with local Elders at the Bush Theatre.

Even the Bowlo, that bastion of Aussie values, in past years bedecked in Australian flag bunting with Celtic folk music playing, put the date back a day this year to fit in with their social bowls schedule, merely adding a waterslide on the Sunday, and closed Monday.

Perhaps it is a reflection of the scepticism that now appears to surround the date of 26th January, which has only been our national day since 1946, or 1935, whatever, it seems pretty arbitrary.

Perhaps it is due to the on-going resistance to the commemoration by the First Nation communities, who rightly point to the barbarity of the British invaders. The new names: Invasion Day, Survival Day, clearly underscore the offensive nature of the celebrations.

Not even the annual Nimbin Pool Olympics fundraiser held on 26th January, which includes a fashion parade, had any hint of nationalistic badging.

Perhaps no-one wants to be associated with the views of the Aussie rednecks at the Cronulla or St Kilda beaches. Wearing an Aussie flag could lead to some difficult conversations, and possibly unwanted new friendships.

Then again, maybe it was just too hot to be doing anything other than heading to the beach for a dip.

Johan and Sol beat the heat with some waterslide fun at the Bowlo.

2019 POOL OLYMPICS

by Sue Edmonds

This year's Nimbin Pool Olympics was a resounding success, with more spectators and competitors than ever.

They could hardly squeeze into the BBQ shelter to get their refreshments after swimming up and down, walking backwards and forwards, pushing and pulling crocodiles and floating.

The quality of the marathon float was raised to another level, people must have been in training all summer, floating in any water they could find.

Michael, Sue and Biko won the Fashion, and Mandy won her first trophy ever for Duck Hula (pictured).

The pool was sparkling, crispy clean and clear. John, our precious maintenance worker, was awarded a special trophy to acknowledge his hard work.

Thanks to all our generous sponsors, the Emporium, the Bakery, the Artists Gallery, and the spectators for their contribution to our morning of fun, and to the competitors without whom there'd be no Olympics.

Some of the 'babies' that were rescued from the bottom of the pool.

Bunjulung Elders Cecil Roberts and Charlie Harris have given permission to share secrets due to the need to stop Byron Bay Council from turning “Australia’s Stonehenge” into a housing development.

This site is of importance to all Original people and a site of great worldwide significance. Boogelbear – Thank you for sharing with us.

This sacred site was built by the Seven Sisters who were tall, attractive, white women who travelled around Australia long ago with their mother. They sang beautifully and shared wisdom – especially with the women.

They shaped, engraved and moved hundreds of tonnes of basalt and sandstone to create the 184 Standing Stones carved with thousands of pre-Egyptian glyphs on the mound.

The Astronomical stone circle, similar to European ones used in Neolithic and Bronze age times, shows equinoxes and can predict the position of the sun, moon, eclipses and stars – useful knowledge for sailors.

Although this site was thought to be destroyed in the 1940’s, most stones have been found and the name of each rock and the translation, knowledge of positioning and of the “Dance of the Stone Arrangements (Story of Life from Birth to Death)” is retained and taught at ritual of high degree.

Another secret we can now know is that one of the Seven Sisters had a son here named Byami. He and his sons taught many skills including making fish traps in rivers using rock walls.

The Seven Sisters and their son Byami are important in Women’s and Men’s Lore/Law all over Australia. This site has great significance for both women and men and more than one culture.

From the earliest years, anthropologists could see a lot of similarities between the Seven Sisters, who are associated with the Pleiades star system and honey, in both Greek and Original people “mythology”.

In the Greek “myths”, their parents were Atlas and Pleione, grandparents Iapetus and Clymere and their Uncle was Prometheus. One sister, Maia, was the mother of Hermes/Thoth, and another Merope was married to King Sisyphus of Corinth. Pharos Island, now submerged, off the Nile delta is thought to be “Atlantis”.

There are also Indian and Puka Puka North Cook Islander “myths” about these Seven Sisters. They were collectively called the Pleiads. Plei means “to sail” and the Pleiades was an important star system for sailors.

Gavin Menzies, author of 1421 – the year China discovered the world, and has written The Lost Empire of Atlantis – History’s greatest mystery revealed, speaks of Pharos Island having the largest port in the Southern Greek and Islander Alliance of a vast shipping trade.

He proves they sourced copper from Lake Superior in America through the purity of the copper in the Mediterranean and the DNA of people in America.

He shows trade was happening globally in ancient times and this empire was powerful before wars and natural disasters. They were capable of sailing here.

I hope women and men of many cultures will share this sacred place of global significance in a beautiful way, respectfully and appropriately, after we save it together.

Please email the manager and representatives at: council@byron.nsw.gov.au and sign the petition at: www.change.org/p/Australian-Heritage-Protect-Australia-s-Stonehenge. Letters and emails count. Please ask for a reply from our representatives.

Steven and Evan Strong have been advocating for years to restore this site and have a wonderful website with many links for more info / involvement and Facebook: Forgotten origin out of Australia theory.

Greens announce Githabul Rangers forest recovery initiative

NSW MP and Greens environment spokesperson Cate Faehrmann and Greens candidate for Lismore Sue Higginson have announced $31.5 million over ten years, as part of a plan to transfer care and control of 29,700ha of State Forests north of Kyogle to the Githabul Tribe.

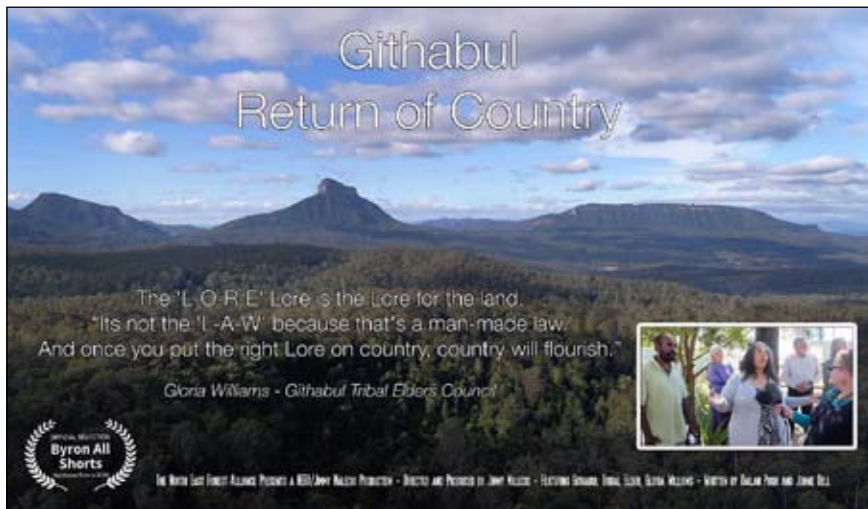

The announcement comes after Ms Faehrmann and Ms Higginson travelled with Githabul Rangers to see their ongoing work rehabilitating and repairing the Toonumbar State Forest.

In 2007 the Githabul were granted Native Title over 1120km² in nine National Parks and 13 State Forests in the headwaters of the Richmond and Clarence Rivers. After years of watching Forestry Corporation continue to destroy their forests, in 2016 the Githabul blockaded, and logging has not recommenced in the area.

The Githabul Rangers program has been operating for over 10 years and has made significant inroads to address alarming levels of Bell Miner Associated Dieback in eucalypt forest and rainforest areas due to intensive logging.

Greens candidate for Lismore Sue Higginson said, “It is clear that the Githabul love their lands and are deeply connected to them. This plan is about recognising and supporting the incredible work they are already doing to repair and regenerate their Native Title Lands, improving ecological and cultural connections across the region.

Greens MP and Environment spokesperson Cate Faehrmann said,

This new short film, written by Dailan Pugh and Jennie Dell, directed and produced by Jimmy Malecki, was Highly Commended for the Stories of Consequence and Social Impact award at the Byron All Shorts film competition on 26th January.

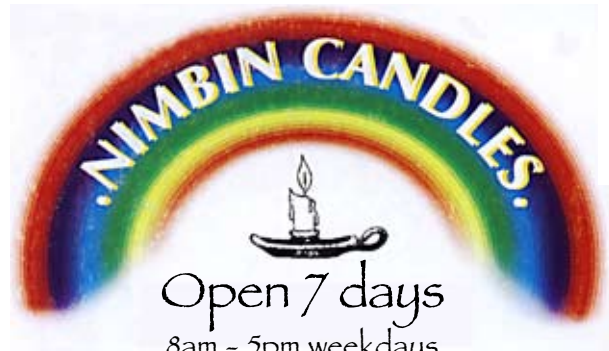

“Many of the forests in the headwaters of the Richmond river are in a terrible state due to years of unsustainable logging and weed infestation. It was inspiring to see the positive progress of the Githabul Rangers to rehabilitate these forests, and I urge all parties to step up and commit to funding this plan.”

The Greens plan to expand the program includes:

- Transferring care and control of 29,700ha State Forests for which Githabul Native Title rights are recognised, from the NSW Government to the Githabul Tribe.
- Transferring the care and control of Crown lands around the Tooloom Falls Aboriginal Place to the Githabul Tribe.

- Provide $30m to implement a comprehensive 10 year plan to rehabilitate this land including arresting and repairing Bell Miner Associated Dieback – this is additional to $1.4m pa of Commonwealth Caring for Country funding.
- $1.5m for the establishment of a Githabul Cultural and Tourism Centre on Githabul land at Roseberry Creek.
- Assistance in the preparation of a comprehensive Plan of Management to safeguard conservation and cultural values and prioritise rehabilitation works.

Terania protestors celebrate 40 years

by Trevor Reece,
project co-ordinator

2019 celebrates the 40th anniversary year of the historic Terania rainforest protection actions and logging protests of 1979. While the National Parks project team is busy, there are also some other associated events to look out for. There is a photographic exhibition of historic photographs of the protest by David Kemp at the Lismore Art Gallery in March, and a public talk on the protest by Hugh Nicholson at the gallery also on 2nd March.

Check the Lismore Regional Gallery website for the program dates and times for these and any program date changes.

The Northern Rivers Bushwalkers Club are planning a special commemorative walk into the Terania rainforest basin, and later picnic in the public park in August in Nightcap National Park. You can check their website for times closer to August. Other events are also in the planning.

Logs leave Terania Creek under police protection. Photo: David Kemp

The project has had a small administrative setback, however and we are overcoming this. We are now however in a race with time to achieve all that we hope to achieve with the project.

We encourage all from the regional community to support and join in the celebration and the National Park approved project for this anniversary of the Terania protests and also recognition for the Mt Nardi protests which together brought about the creation of World Heritage listed Nightcap National Park.

We are always looking for helpers. The project is now planning a special commemorative sign at the start of the Protestors Falls walk within the National Park. Even these do not come cheap. Our project target month is for August.

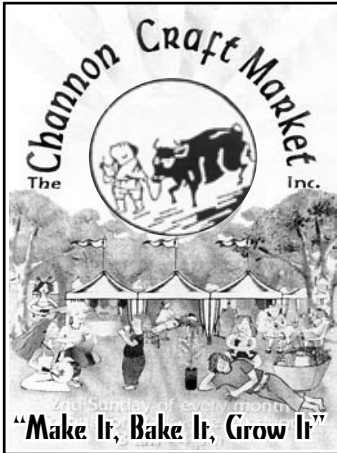

We would love help, in particular to assist with a planned crowdfunding for the project and with some social media platforms. The Brunswick Valley Historical Society Inc is supporting the project, and has an account for tax deductible donations.

To engage with the project, you can contact Robyn or Jo at the Channon Markets (admin@thechannonmarket.org.au); the BVHS (bvhs84@yahoo.com.au) or the project co-ordinator: treece545@gmail.com

NIMBIN ENVIRONMENT CENTRE NEWS

by Scott Sledge, President

We have entered a dangerous period. Climate change threatens our future and we must prevent mass extinction of species due to human folly. Is it too late to save the Great Barrier Reef? Can we get trains back on our tracks, and maybe have cycleways as well?

We need good representatives at all levels of government. All too often, governments become dominated by vested business interests with serious consequences to the homes and lives of ordinary people. I note a widespread perception that most politicians tend to look after themselves, and their mates in big political parties, agencies and corporations, with negative effects on communities and environments. The concept of service needs to be resuscitated and a new era of cooperation started.

The Nimbin Environment Centre shop is a good example of cooperation: no one is paid, all volunteers work for the greater good and things run well...not exactly clockwork, but with a friendly vibe that visitors notice and locals enjoy. There is usually space on the shop roster for new reliable volunteers who can spare a few hours on a regular basis. If you want to help come in on a Wednesday and talk to Triny or Daniele.

Many people ask what they can do to help preserve the world for their children and grandchildren. Unless you have the resources to buy political favours, your best option is to vote for good people and vote the bastards out.

How? In most elections (federal, state, council) number the boxes beside candidates listed on a ballot. Start numbering with those you like best to least. If you don't like any of the candidates start with candidates you like least: If there are 8 candidates, for example, write 8 beside the candidate from your least favourite party (I suggest you put the Liberal/National parties Coalition last this time) and work backwards to those you hate least, and write 1 beside that candidates' name. Simple? Yes, for the few names on the Lower House ballot, but the Upper House (called the Legislative Council in NSW) ballot can have so many candidates listed that you may want to vote above the dark line which separates the list of candidates from their group ticket box. In the NSW state election (23rd March), you can number 1 beside your favourite party or group and then continue to number the remaining boxes above the line, or you can vote for 15 candidates "below the line." You can number as many as you want but must mark at least 15.

Voting below the line allows you to determine who gets your vote in order of your own preference. Voting only 1 above the line allows party power brokers to manipulate preferences. It is hugely important which of the major parties gets your preference vote ahead of the other. Often preferences decide the outcome. These elections will decide our future. Put the Coalition last.

In the next four years, NSW will make important decisions such as whether to build a large hospital on State Significant Farmland at Kingscliff, and a new high school in the Pottsville area. Do we build more dams or conserve water resources? Do we allow water mining, which profits a few but could devastate others? Are the rivers to be saved? Will we allow our forests and wildlife to be destroyed? How will we fund aged care and health services? What can we do to help the homeless? Do we want to abandon building height restrictions to allow Gold Coast style development? Can we organise a UN Heritage-listed Biosphere conservation zone to promote nature-based tourism? And how can we get better roads and train transport while preserving threatened species such as koalas?

Vote to promote a sustainable future for all and resist the mounting inequality in society.

Refusing to vote helps the same type of person get elected and we get more of the same bad decisions and increasing corruption. The time is now to stand up for a bright new vision. Stand up for the environment, especially threatened species such as koalas. The NSW election is on 23rd March and the Federal election due sometime before June. We deserve better government.

Get ready for the National Forests Uprising in Canberra on 13th February. Check the Forest Embassy website for details: <https://theforestembassy.org/national-forest-uprising-2>

If you want to be involved in local events to demonstrate support for sustainable management of forests, please contact the NEC shop and leave your details. We also intend to hold a rally in Lismore on World Wildlife Day Sunday 3rd March. This is three weeks out from the State election and a great opportunity for various groups to come together on the theme of wildlife.

The management of water is already a big issue and forests management is key to combating climate changes and drought.

Nimbin CWA reinvents itself

by Moksha and Terri

Women interested in re-commencing a Nimbin Country Women's Association (NCWA) have surpassed our expectation with 30 women stepping forward on what was a special day of interested women gathering on 21st January.

Each woman had a chance to have her say, and all women heard one another.

Auntie Faye Scherf, a well known Nimbin local, turned up with enthusiasm.

She is our Elder Auntie and her eyes shone and twinkled with love for Country and love for us women.

New beginnings in our much loved Nimbin Village/Country.

Our first official meeting as the Nimbin Country Women's Association will be held on the verandah at the Nimbin School of Arts Hall on Monday 18th February, at 5pm.

Much love to all women who came to our initial gathering to determine interest. We hope to see you all, along with other new women again soon.

MO 'Think Tank'

An outcome of the ongoing conversations happening via the Nimbin MO Think Tank has been the identification of the need for a peak body to represent the rural land sharing community's issues at local/state and federal policy levels.

We are looking for current residents of RLCs who may be interested in convening a group/representing their Local Government Area, for the following LGAs: Tweed, Kyogle, Richmond Valley, Clarence and Ballina.

If you are interested, please contact Nat on: admin@nnic.org.au – please let us know which RLC you live on, and the relevant LGA.

Surely it will rain soon?

While we all wait and pray for some decent rain, remember to leave some water around for our wildlife friends. Ensure the water is kept clean and fresh, and provide exit 'ladders' such as sticks to prevent critters from drowning in water containers. Showcasing the Nimbin Agricultural & Industrial Society

This year will mark the 100th Nimbin Show, an event that continues to play an important role in Nimbin life.

Regular visitors to the showground will be aware of the extensive improvements that have occurred in recent years.

At a time when many show societies are struggling or folding, it is timely to examine what has contributed to the success of the Nimbin Agricultural & Industrial Society (A&I).

The A&I's ownership of the site sets it apart from many other show societies in NSW that rent or lease their sites, and allows it to operate all year round.

While much of the land was donated by the Stewart family early last century, a further parcel of "community land", created as part of the subdivision of Jarlanbah and other properties in the '80s, has been maintained by the A&I for more than 30 years.

Known as Bellevue Park, this land was home to the former Nimbin Demons Aussie Rules club.

It has considerable sport and recreational benefits for Nimbin, and we need to support the A&I's negotiations to acquire it from council, thereby ensuring it remains within the community.

The decision to open the showgrounds to MardiGrass camping a number of years ago was a turning point for the

by Diana Roberts, president organisation and led to a year-round camp site, providing a permanent income stream.

The $10 per person/per night fee in a beautiful location has also increased overnight stays in Nimbin, and benefitted local businesses.

Camping facilities have steadily improved, with a second amenities block, along with a camp kitchen including fridge, sink, microwave and an electric barbecue being added in recent years.

Two caretakers alternate management of the facilities, together with a dedicated committee and a pool of volunteers; as few as six on any Wednesday workday and more than 100 during show time.

The Showground is also home to the Nimbin Preschool which pays a nominal rent and enjoys the free use of additional land for the children's vegetable garden.

The Discover Fitness gym is housed in the main pavilion and is patronised by many community members.

Others regularly use the grounds for a range of activities including dog-walking.

Future projects include rebuilding the show-ring fence, which is in a poor state, and gradually replacing the Camphor Laurels surrounding it with appropriate native species.

But the big project in coming years will be restoring the main pavilion.

Built in 1926, the existing building needs restumping and part of the roof replaced, with possible demolition and rebuilding of adjoining sections.

The committee has engaged consultants with a view to agreeing on a design, drawing up plans, obtaining quotes and actively seeking funding for the restoration.

The A&I Society is currently setting up a new website at: <https://nimbinshowsociety.org.au> and is keen to link campers with local businesses.

If your business is interested in this, or if you are interested in involvement in any of the above contact them at: nimbinshow2@y7mail.com

The Nimbin Chamber of Commerce committee meets on the first Monday of every month. If you would like something on the agenda, please email to: chamber@nimbin.nsw.au or contact Diana on 0427-886-748.

Focus on women's health

The four Multi-Purpose Service (MPS) facilities (Nimbin, Kyogle, Bonalbo and Urbenville) are very fortunate to have a community nurse who specialises in women's health.

Maree Eastman (pictured) is a Clinical Nurse Consultant (CNC) working for the NNSW Local Health District and offers a free confidential nurse service for women.

All that is required is your Medicare card.

She starts at 9.30am on a specific day at your local MPS each month. The appointments are 45 minutes long, and she usually has up to six appointments a day.

Maree is a Registered Nurse who has midwifery and women's health post-graduate certificates and has been working with women for the past 35 years.

She moved from WA to Casino in 2000 and now travels to the four MPS in our area.

The role of a community nurse in women's health is to work in partnership with other health professionals and women to promote and maintain health.

She can refer you to a doctor or other health services or give information about health education resources, support groups and community programs.

In Maree's brochure it states, "Women have special health needs which are determined by their reproductive, sexual and social roles in society."

She does treat people who have a disability.

Pap smears are no longer performed. They have been replaced by the Cervical Screening Test. If the virus is not detected, it is a five-yearly screen rather than the two yearly pap smear test.

This new cervical cancer screen program commenced in December 2017.

It is recommended that if you are a woman between the ages of 25 and 74 years of age and have ever been sexually active, you should have a Cervical Screening Test every five years.

All results from tests go to your doctor.

The following are other tests and assessments she can conduct on the day she is at your local MPS:

- Breast checks;
- Pregnancy testing and advice;
- Postnatal checks;
- Post termination checks;
- Continence assessment; and
- Sexually transmitted infection screening.

Information can be provided about:

- Sexual health;
- Reproductive health;
- Menstruation;
- Menopause;
- Osteoporosis;
- Continence;
- Contraception; and
- Relationship and lifestyle issues.
