

ASTRO FORECASTS by Tina Mews

What's happening in the heavens?

Aries

This Mercury retrograde phase invites you to review, resolve and heal unsettled relationship themes. Create a balance between your need for freedom and your ability to commit and cooperate. Frustrated energy is best transformed by accepting real limitations, either in yourself or in your dealings with others.

Taurus

Beware of possible miscommunication especially at your workplace. You might need to become more flexible and rework your routines if you find that you are lacking time or energy. Health issues have to be addressed and it is the time of the year where you need to take good care of yourself on all levels.

Gemini

You might feel indecisive about what to do next or you might even experience a phase of blocked creativity. Use this time of review for reflecting on your purpose and creative potential. Observe your self-talk and be open for new inspiration. There is lots that can be done if you make the step.

Cancer

The energy of the moment evolves around home and your relationships with those close to you. This could be a good time for a journey down memory lane. Create your own healing space when allowing yourself to delve into the past. Clear old hurts and unresolved relationship issues. Use the New Moon period for renewal and regeneration.

Leo

Communication plays a key role right now, especially the conversation you have with your community, neighbours and siblings. Make sure that you have understood the other person's view fully before going off the deep end. Travel plans could be delayed while Mercury is retrograde (until October 18th). Be prepared and have your car, phone, computer etc all in good working order.

Virgo

Mercury retrograde (until October 18th) is a time of review and revision. Contemplate adjustments to plans and incentives so that they align with your values and needs. Or revisit your values and needs so that they align with the reality that you are living in now. What do you really want and what is important to you?

Since September 23rd, the Sun is journeying through Libra, the sign that seeks balance and harmony in relationships. Our society has reached a dangerous point of division and separation.

Consequently, the ability and willingness to 'walk in the other's shoes' and look at the world from their perspective is essential for maintaining our human values. Mars, the planet of rivalry and strife is traversing Libra since September 15th and will remain until October 31st signalling fertile ground for conflict in relationships, whether it be between two people, different factions or even countries.

However, the communication planet Mercury has been in Libra since August 31st, turned retrograde on September 27th and will be direct again on October 18th. Mercury retrograde asks us to rethink, rework and reconcile our differences in a peaceful manner. This is easier said than done because we live in a time where censorship, disinformation, and propaganda have a crucial role to play in keeping us divided. On the positive, during the Mercury-in-Libra period (until November 6th) the Cosmic Messenger forms three supportive trines with inspirational Jupiter in Aquarius: September 20th-23rd, October 3rd-5th and November 1st-2nd reminding us of our shared humanity, encouraging uplifting thoughts, big ideas and thinking about the future in a cooperative way. Libra prompts us to create a place of inner equilibrium when the outer world is in turmoil.

Mercury retrograde starts the month with a strenuous square aspect to Pluto in Capricorn which has been in orb since 21st September. This is a difficult time for making alliances and mergers of all sorts, including the signing of contracts. It coincides with disagreements, arguments, the break-down of communication and experiences of betrayal. A recent revelation of Australia's new nuclear submarine deal has taken many by surprise, fuelling widespread public and international anger. It is timely to reflect on our societal programming and how we might project our anxieties and rage against those who think differently, including other cultures or even countries for that matter. Mistrust and suspicion intensify in times of social stress and crisis. This force of collective unease can be hijacked by power holders and individuals of influence to further their own agendas.

Libra has a strong sense for justice and fairness demonstrating a natural talent for mediating between opposing views until reconciliation is achieved. The New Moon in Libra on October 6 is closely conjunct Mars and opposes Chiron in Aries activating the Aries-Libra axis. This is an intense New Moon and conflict can easily erupt. Aries is the sign opposite to Libra and this axis describes the tension that exists in all relationships: the need for individual freedom and autonomy (Aries) versus the need for cooperation and the sharing of responsibilities. Chiron is a Centaur that orbits between Saturn and Uranus. It symbolically bridges the inner space with the outer space and spirit with matter. Symbolically, Chiron signifies the place within our soul where opposites can be reconciled through the awakening of compassion and understanding that often is bestowed through physical, emotional or spiritual suffering. Chiron is called 'the wounded healer'. Healing means making whole. On a positive note, we might be able to use the energies of this New Moon for restoring wholeness in our own communities where division has occurred.

Three outer planets are turning direct during this month: Pluto in Capricorn on October 7th, Saturn in

October

Aquarius on October 11th and Jupiter in Aquarius on October 22nd indicating important turning points and a cautious start into a new direction. Socially and enjoyment seeking Venus enters adventurous Sagittarius on October 7th (until November 5th). We are promised the end of lockdowns and the return to more freedom. However, with Mars in Libra until the end of the month and Mercury retrograde until October 18th it will be difficult to make lasting arrangements and decisions. In many ways, we must go back to the drawing board, rethinking and reworking our plans and objectives.

The Full Moon in Aries opposite the Libra Sun on October 20-21 gives energy to a stressful square between quarrelsome Mars in Libra and powerful Pluto in Capricorn. This could be a period of severe power struggles and disagreements. On the positive, Mars forms a supportive trine aspect with open-minded Jupiter in futuristic Aquarius. When using the high road, we can live up to the challenge and make important changes in the world around us. Truly understanding the nature of the conflict will open the door for exchange, communication and ultimately new growth.

Libra

This is the beginning of a new yearly cycle. Consider that Mercury will be retrograde until October 18th when you set your intentions for your personal new year. This means that you cannot push ahead but rather allow things to develop. Remain flexible as there might be some corrections to plans and incentives as you move along.

Scorpio

This is not an easy Mercury retrograde period (until October 18th). Lots is still in the dark which makes it difficult to plan anything with certainty. You might find this lack of control as stressful and unsettling. Try to be more flexible and take some time out for recuperation. Release and recharge your batteries. Fresh energy will soon be flowing in.

Sagittarius

This Mercury retrograde period (until October 18th) might be good for re-grouping and re-connecting with some good old friends. Venus is entering your Sun sign on October 7th (until November 5th) promising you more socially active times. You might also find out who your real friends are, possibly leaving some connections behind.

Capricorn

This Mercury retrograde period (until October 18th) can be helpful for reviewing your life direction, for re-orientation of career plans and for re-marketing your public image. Reflect on what you would like to achieve and whether you are on the right path. It is not a good period for making lasting decisions or signing important contracts.

Aquarius

Make use of this Mercury retrograde period (until October 18th) for re-examining your philosophy of living. Your beliefs about the world create what you experience. Take some time to re-visualise where and what you want to be, especially if you have lost the big picture view along the way. It is time to consider the future.

Pisces

Use this Mercury retrograde period (until October 18th) for reviewing joint projects and shared duties. Find out if you are getting and/or giving your fair share in a relationship. It may be time to redistribute responsibilities to make it fairer for everyone involved. This is also a great period for letting go of the old while a new chapter in your life is going to start soon.

Time travelling with Nikola Tesla

Meet my time traveller friend Julie. We've been friends for 20 years and as long as I've known her she's talked about a desire to travel back and forth in time. She believes she could do it, if only she can remember how!

Julie has felt a strong connection to Nikola Tesla for most of her life and wondered if they had experienced a past life together. Tesla was born in 1856 and died in 1943 and was way ahead of his time, most of his ideas and inventions being quite futuristic.

Very often when we feel a strong connection or attraction to someone, it is because we have known them in a previous lifetime. The same goes for places on earth, or even other planets or star systems, it's usually because we have had a particularly significant past life or lives there. These places and people usually seem familiar in a way we can't quite put our finger on.

To help Julie understand this Tesla connection, I led her into deep hypnosis and asked her Higher Self to show her what she most needed to know right now, being careful not to pre-empt any particular scenario. Julie quickly regressed to a time in New York in the 1920s where she was a dancer.

It was a very happy, joyous life and through her public performances she attracted the attention of Nikola Tesla who was also living there then. In her current life Julie is also a dancer, something that continues to gives her a lot of joy. Tesla was attracted to her happy, light nature, which balanced his seriousness.

Tesla and Julie developed a friendship which, despite a mutual attraction, did not become romantic, Tesla choosing to remain focussed on his work and developing technologies which he believed would change the world. Julie was heartbroken and felt rejected, carrying this as a soul wound into this lifetime, which has caused her to subconsciously choose men who would reject her.

Tesla was also obsessed with the idea of time travel and worked on a developing a time machine, reportedly succeeding, stating: "I could see the past, present, and future all at the same time." The designs were discovered after his death and were used by the United States government to build time travel machines.

Now we had answers to Julie's interest in time travel and her connection to Nikola Tesla. Julie's Higher Self informed her that this technology will be freely available to humanity within 10 years and I'm pretty sure Julie's conscious memory of the mechanism of time travel will be activated long before that.

In researching this article, I discovered many internet sites with reports of people mysteriously appearing from the past as well as the future. There's the story of a young couple travelling in Europe in 1979 who booked into a hotel where everything looked like it was from another age.

The people were dressed in clothes from another era and when they left and paid their bill the next morning it was only 19 francs, much less than expected. On returning to England they tried to find the hotel but it didn't seem to exist. Strangely the photos they took in the hotel all disappeared too.

I wonder how many travellers in time walk amongst us? About five years ago I was travelling on Sydney's Manly ferry, and when the ferry docked I noticed man who looked like he belonged to another time. He was immaculately dressed, wore his hair short back and sides, wore a hat and old fashioned looking suit, shirt and tie, his shoes highly polished, carrying a brown leather briefcase, a furled black umbrella and a rolled-up newspaper under his arm. His whole demeanour was of someone from the 1950s.

He was very unusual and certainly stood out amongst the casual Manly ferry crowd. A time traveller perhaps?

by Marilyn Devlin

It has certainly been a wild ride, the intensity building as the year progresses. Each month higher – faster, faster. At the same time the constant, the still, the presence, the remembering, the breath... my breath. Life. My Life. Feels like I've journeyed so many places. Sometimes in days. Heights, depths, storms, hurricanes. Deadening weights – shock, alarm, anger... paralysis, immobility. Dropping near depression. Fevers, chills – body malaise. Hurting heart... contractions... scary. The whole show happening inside me. We feel it all. Stumbling to the edge – the pit so close. Meeting edges... not visible yet. Deep, deadening... yet clothed in subtlety. Could almost miss it, but for their lingering presence, the most scary of all. Quiet and still... don't know until you fall right in. But the messengers are always there, looking out for you. The danger tweets echoing through the heavy lead-laden clouds. Will we see the sun again? Lifetimes in months – traversing so much ground. Travelling light years... standing in one space. What's happening... what's really going on? have no control over the storm... only of myself. My self shifting before my very eyes. Depth of understanding – brilliant clarity. Help comes to remind me, again and again. Never forgets. Always there. We truly never walk alone. Although it feels that way at times... wandering through these foreign lands. Testing in the extreme all we've ever been. Finding the truth... the peace, the joy... settled warm inside me. I forget, I am lost... then I'm found again. I resurrect. I am reborn. The other side. The fires burned... they raged... the enemy was fierce. The battle bloody. Peace on the other side. My body still recovering. Til the next one begins. Finding my way. Pushed and pulled... punched and fallen. Body hurts – aching heart. Body contracts... prepared for attack. Memories ancient rise to the surface. History repeats itself... again and again. Straddled between worlds... Light and Dark. Keeping the flame alight. My purpose and my mission. No greater one exists. If we could only do that. We would've achieved so much. Storms heightened... scenes unbelievable. All an illusion they say... looks so real. The shadows confuse. It comes and it goes... really has no purpose but to distract... steal your soul. Mess with your head. Life on Earth is not always easy. Specially walking through these heightened times. Where the big battle surges. Who will be the victor? Who will rule my world? There's only ever been one answer. Light and Love... the Eternal Oneness. That one Great Power. Each day Sun rises... Moon as night gets closer. Stars twinkle, breeze caresses... sometimes messes. Trees inspire... their beauty, their commitment. Their ancient wisdom. Their kindness, their care. Their reliability. The tide dances... back and forth... bringing precious water to refresh. Crystal clear... shines, delights. Life celebrates... gets on with its business. Never complains. Just keeps on being. Silent, unobtrusive... kindness swaying. Giving, protecting, nourishing... adoring. It's all around us... the evidence. Yet our focus drills on the inconsequential... the tiny, the insignificant. Blown out of all proportion. We're easily swayed by the dark side. Yet at our core we're full of light. Yes a startling conundrum of sorts. We have a lifetime to work it out. We don't get to know how long that will be. Each day we give thanks for being here. Usually we're way too busy. Life continues on... until it doesn't. Civilisations come and go. Nothing is immovable. Except maybe our stubbornness and pride. But as my dear friend, teacher and guide Prem Rawat once said, there's way more good in this world than bad. I know... we can miss it at times. Until sometimes we remember again.

Ode to Marat

by Sean Dubois

Fake news is certainly problematic. It spreads its tentacles over the misinformed and the misguided, devouring truth and reason as it goes.

It's been around for a fair while. Some would argue that it's been around since Gutenberg put the last nail in the coffin of blissful ignorance with his printing press.

Yet I'd argue that it's been around since Plato first began ejaculating vacuous moral platitudes about Pl*tonic (I refuse to even write the word) love.

Even though the debaucherous Romans, lascivious Vikings and raunchy French took little heed of Plato, his insidious ideas festered and eventually found an audience in despotic Victorian England.

Determined to crush a rebellious proletariat, the toffs rejected Donne's espousal of '[f]ull nakedness! All joys are due to thee' and Marvel's fear that 'worms shall try/ That long-preserved virginity', ideas that had been cherished and nurtured by generations of enlightened men and women, in favour of 'dull sublunary lovers' love'.

In plain English, the elites vowed to crush hedonism and physical love to break the morale of the working class.

And how did they do this? Through propagandising the virtues of pl*tonic love over the power of physical passion and love-making (there I am using a euphemism for hard sex, bugger you Vicky!).

This was but one part of an obsession with cleanliness and hygiene that began to take hold and would lead to epidemics of measles, polio and celibacy. To cure such diseases the government stepped in with so-called 'vaccines'. At the time of publication the government has been unable to produce a vaccine for chastity.

In criminalising the sexual passions that characterised the Renaissance, the Brits created an embittered working class bereft of love and feeling.

Statue of Plato at the Neoclassical Academy of Athens

Consequently, workers violently rebelled against their overlords when they should have been making love to them to achieve true liberation. Libert ,  galit , faire l'amour.

While we might think ourselves free of puritanical notions of 'no sex before marriage' and 'condoms are translucent rubber devils' nowadays, such dogmas are actually written in indelible ink on the wavy seaweed that lurks in the depths of our subconscious minds.

Why don't we run around naked and snog and hug and laugh as we please? Because the media and the elites wouldn't allow it. Love cannot be controlled, so the elites try to control thoughts.

Physical distancing? The only virus it stops is free love. Masks? Good luck French kissing. According to the government, love and hedonism are cancers in remission, and they only stay in remission because of invasive chemotherapy.

So we come back to Plato. I bet you he didn't have much fun in his dank little cave with nothing much to do save transcend the physical with his distinctly non-physical girlfriend.

Probably pretty similar with Vicky after Albert died.

Covid, who to trust?

I tend to trust people who care, who demonstrate they have no agenda, but to be kind and fair.

From them I hear words wise and true, and they say about Covid, this is what we should do.

Look to enhance what nature has given, our natural defence against all things viral. Eat well, be kind, stay active, preferably in sun and air – thus avoiding a downward spiral.

It's the fence atop the cliff, that if maintained will save you time and work lost, make you feel better, with clearer mind – thus saving the Health System billions in cost.

But not a word have I heard of this practical advice, from those who say they know best, Not a word of encouragement to build defence – just come to our ambulance, and resume the fest.

But rather they're fixated on an artificial immunity, avoiding the need to care for the one we've been given. Seems we've forgotten how to drive – preferring to be driven.

Just trust our hasty quick-fix, another clever way to cheat cause and effect, that requires a second jab, and how many more? Hurriedly tested, with yet unknown side effects.

Covid is an effect, so it has a cause, that's one of the universe's laws. Cleverness addresses effects; Intelligence address cause.

I'm not against vaccination, or other band-aids, as few completely escape their need, but to use them to avoid addressing cause, just intensifies the effects – until we heed.

It's just another plug in the dam wall of outward attempts – at holding back the vast waters of human desire; a plug requiring constant resources to hold in. But of battling water's pressure, we'll tire.

Until we address how we're treating our bodies – and each other and the earth – she'll keep trying to get our attention, by fire, disease, or dearth.

So is it likely to work, this another clever plug, battling our wanting, some call sin? Better to go into the water, and use its pressure, to hold the plug in.

– John Kersten

Bye bye Peggy Pye

The world according to Magenta Appel-Pye

On 8th September my wonderful mother, Peggy Pye, left her body to go on, as she said, her “next fabulous adventure”. When asked about the hereafter, she said she just wants to go where the musos are. Covid made it impossible to be there which was heartbreaking. But that’s life, and death. When I was younger, I thought I wouldn’t be able to handle it when Mum passed. But as I’ve aged, I have learnt to accommodate death. At 60, I’m strong, experienced with death, and just feel fortunate to have lived this long with her. The waves of grief come and go but I am happy for her. She had to give up playing double bass, and teaching painting at 90, so the joy went out of her life. Luckily, I was able to have the little wake I promised her. We toasted her, for she loved a drink; told some jokes, she loved the pithy one-liners; and played music. In Sydney there was a church service that I watched on livestream. Mum supplied a poem whose last line says, “Miss me, but let me go.” I remind myself of this constantly. It wasn’t until she passed that I totally understood that a part of her lives on in me, and that makes me love myself more, nearly as much as I love her. Peggy Pye, 4/11/1930 – 8/9/2021

Three couples arrive at the Pearly Gates. The first couple ask St Peter if they can come in. “No, you’ve been a drunk all your life, you spent the family’s money on alcohol, you even married a girl named Sherry. The next man said, “Can we come in?” Once again St Peter said “No, all you cared about was money and you were a miser. You even married a woman named Penny.” The last man said to his wife, “Come on Fanny, we haven’t got a chance!”

Sweet dreams

Every morning my wife asks me if I had any dreams. Sometimes I dream about having sex with other women. Should I tell?

– Captain Snooze, Sleepy Hollow

by Uncle Norm and Aunty Maj

She says

Our dreams give us direct access to our subconscious. They can shed light on what is troubling us, give guidance on where to go and practice doing this. We can get inspiration, explore our creativity, gain healing and have fun and adventures. Dreams function both to solve outward problems and to quicken inner potentials. So, it is worthwhile making a point to remember our dreams and the easiest way is to speak about them as soon as you wake up. Many of us have that dream but are too embarrassed to talk about it, or worry that the other person will be upset, which they always are. But apparently these dreams are all about you! When you dream of others, it’s usually because your dreaming mind has chosen these people to represent the qualities you see in them. Sex in dreams is about what qualities or attitudes you are integrating into your life. Ask what three words best describe your dream lover’s personality or approach to life. These qualities are what is happening in your being. If the sex is good, that indicates a good integration. If the sex is bad, you should think again about your new approach. If you have a trusting, loving relationship, and both understand that people in dreams are symbols, then this is a beautiful way to share your deeper self with your partner. It might even make them jealous, which could be a good thing. But if there is too much grief, then next time share the dream details and say the other person was your partner or simply say you don’t remember. Happy dreams.

HE says

Oh Captain, sharing our dreams every morning is an interesting and sometimes dangerous pastime for couples. Usually, we geezers don’t have much to report. Our dreams are gone and forgotten with the first fart of the day. But then, we have to make a herculean effort to listen patiently while the wifey relates her long and convoluted night-time adventures. We have to concentrate really hard to keep up with the plot and, at the end come up with something intelligent or appropriate to say. Of course, failure to do so can result in being murdered in your own bed. All this whilst trying not to go back to sleep, or thinking of sex, or bacon and eggs. Nobody ever said marriage was easy! My point here is that sharing our dreams is dangerous enough without you throwing petrol on the fire and telling her you porked someone else in noddy land. WTF are you thinking? I know it’s tempting to want to tell everyone when you score, even if it’s only in your dreams, but you should be very careful before you open your cake-hole about this. There are times when it can be useful to tell your wife about some of your more erotic sexual dreams. If you’ve been married a long time, these little admissions can juice things up. However, if you are both young and still settling into married life – which takes years – then shut the fuck up. Absolutely, under no circumstances, should you tell the missus that you rooted one of her friends, or sister(s) in your sleep. This is a non-negotiable golden rule for, if broken, is sure to unleash an apocalypse. When all is said and done Captain, old boy, I always say “safety first”. When she asks you about your dreams after you’ve had a night of filth and debauchery, just remember to roll over, fart on her, and say you can’t remember. Sleep tight. I had a recurring dream once.

5. What is the bird emblem of New South Wales?
6. After the Vatican, what is the most predominantly Catholic country in the world? (Hint: It’s not very big and not very far away).
7. This year Peter Wegner won the Archibald Prize for his portrait of whom? Hint: The subject was a former Archibald winner in 1985. Add a bonus point if you can name the 1985 subject.
8. Who won the Nimbin GoodTimes Best Piece Award for August 2021?
9. The Nimbin Performance Poetry World Cup was cancelled by COVID in 2020 but it’s back for 2021 (fingers crossed) from 30th October to 1st November. Only one person has won this prestigious award more than once, winning three times in 2007, 2010 and 2017. Can you name them?
10. Both Bart and Lisa Simpson have pointy hair. Who has the pointiest hair? Add a bonus point if you can say how many points each has.

- Answers
1. Argentina. The Wallabies recently defeated Los Pumas in The Rugby Championship. That’s Rugby Union, for those unfamiliar with “the game they play in heaven.”
  2. Angels.
  3. Yellow and green.
  4. Pink is married to Carey Hart, a professional motocross racer. In 2005 she proposed to him on a pit board during a race in Mammoth Lakes, California.
  5. The kookaburra.
  6. In 2015, 97.57% of the population of East Timor identified as Catholic.
  7. Wegner won with Portrait of Guy Warren at 100. Warren won the 1985 Archibald for his portrait of Bert Flugelman, Flugelman with Wingman.
  8. Eclectus for his magnificent reworking of The Owl And The Pussycat, in Question 8 of Nimbin Trivia Time, which shed new light on the little-known world of old world monkey/crustacean relationships. (Editor’s note: No he didn’t. There’s no such award. Objective fact-based entertainment WILL be restored immediately or this by-line will be doing poetry reviews next month.)
  9. Tig Dumbly (The 2010 award was shared with Elizabeth Rountledge).
  10. Lisa has eight and Bart has nine.

2021 season fizzles out

by Mark and Lucy

Another football season derailed by the pandemic.

At least we got to play near on two full rounds of football before the finals series across all grades was cancelled.

Unlucky for our Women's League 4, Men's League 1 and Grade 16's, who missed the excitement of playing in their finals. We'll never know, but we'd like to think they would have gone all the way.

Trophy presentations for Junior and Miniroos teams will be held on an individual team basis, as was done last season.

We are hoping restrictions will ease enough to enable a Senior Presentation at the Nimbin Hotel, date to be confirmed.

Bureaucracy gone mad has Football Far North Coast no longer able to deal with Sports Clubs. They are only able to affiliate with Incorporated Football Clubs.

This unavoidable and massive change to the Headers' structure has seen our committee scrambling to comply with this imposed change.

A new football-only Incorporated Association, which we hope will be called Nimbin Headers Football Club, will be set up to deal directly with Football Far North Coast.

The Nimbin Headers Sports Club Inc. will remain and the committee, who are voted on at each AGM, will continue to run the club.

These changes have to be completed before the end of the year for the Headers to be able to participate in the 2022 season.

For those playing football, these changes are administrative only, and will have no impact on your experience of the game.

The Nimbin Headers

Sports Club Annual General Meeting is due to be held on Saturday 16th October, 11am at the club. Restrictions may apply, so check our Facebook page closer to the date for up-to-date information.

Please don't hesitate to contact the club via email: nimbinheaderssportsclub@gmail.com if you wish to discuss the above changes.

Circus teacher comes to school

by Skylah, aged 5

When Simon came to preschool, Evey did a backflip. I did a handstand and I did tricks on the silks.

I did one called 'birds nest'. You have to tuck your legs around the silks and when you're coming down you have to go backwards.

I also did a 'Cinderella' (side princess). You have to put your hands up high. One hand up, one hand down and you lean to the side.

Tuntable Falls Preschool is open Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday during school term, and is currently taking enrolments for 2022. Phone 6689-1179.

Art TV show reaches the moon!

The locally produced Art TV series, Put Some Colour in Your Life will take the great honour of being the first art TV show represented on the moon, and will become a permanent reminder of human creatives during the 21st century.

The independent production company, based in Murwillumbah, was established in 2009 by Graeme Stevenson OAM, and makes 24-minute documentaries about artists in their studios. To date, over 300 artists have been filmed in seven countries in Your Life featured artist filmed in 2013, was over the moon about the exciting news.

"What an incredible surprise to receive today! I am overwhelmed by the news that I will be amongst 44 artists from around the world to be included in a digital capsule destined for the moon!" he said.

Artistspoets magazine issue 78, where John had featured with several incredible images of his artwork, as well as statements about the Art TV show where he featured, were placed on a Lunar Codex – a digital time capsule – in a registered

DHL Moon Box that will be sent to the moon in 2022, on the first commercial flight of the Space X rocket Vulcan in the Astrobotic Peregrine Lunar lander.

Peregrine will carry a diverse suite of scientific instruments, technologies, mementos, and other payloads from six different countries, dozens of science teams, and hundreds of individuals.

One of the most important payloads that will be in the PM1 will be the Lunar Codex, which describes itself as combining "digital and analog technology with intention to preserve a time capsule carrying global visual art, literature, music and much more. It will become a permanent reminder of human creatives during the 21st century."

The Astrobotic Peregrine Lunar will be rocketed from Cape Canaveral, Florida, with a destination to land on the moon in an area named Lacus Mortis.

If you would like to learn more about this Australian Art TV show that is not only on TV networks in over 50 countries but also now on the moon, go to: www.colourinyourlife.com.au
